A great experience: Max Rahman, Woodside Dental Practice

“ One of the most important aspects of a successful new surgery installation is the planning and that is where Daniel Payne at Henry Schein Dental proved to be so helpful. He understood exactly what I was trying to achieve - a family-orientated general dental practice with a comfortable but clinical feel. I had ideas in my head regarding the interiors, but I wanted to see them in action before anything went ahead. Dan and his team at Henry Schein Dental worked hard to produce several renderings of different colour schemes, fabrics and furnishing and using their latest design software I was able to see the layouts in 3D...

This gave me a very realistic view of how the different designs could work and made making the final decision so much easier.

It's vital to consider your financial options and have contingency plans at the ready. This whole project was financed throughout by Henry Schein Financial Services which meant there was no disruption to the cashflow of the practice. Spreading the cost with proper financial planning makes a huge difference to a successful outcome. ”
